

Sincerely,

Marissa K. Varcho
<http://thecultivationofbeauty.com>
<http://janesaysrise.com>

Michael Kirkman <mkirkman@disabilityrightsohio.org>
To: Marissa Varcho <marissavarcho@gmail.com>

Thu, Mar 20, 2014 at 11:16 AM

Marissa, thanks for sharing the information about Frankl. I recognized the book after looking it up on Wikipedia, had seen excerpts when doing undergraduate work on French existentialism. Always had an interest in western philosophers as they discover their inner eastern selves (consider the four noble truths of Buddhism, for example).

Here's the information I promised. The video from Jeff Swanson is at <https://www.youtube.com/watch?v=HNsiHaGmdno>. The blogs by the NIMH director are at <http://www.nimh.nih.gov/about/director/2013/antipsychotics-taking-the-long-view.shtml> and <http://www.nimh.nih.gov/about/director/2014/a-new-approach-to-clinical-trials.shtml>. From his 3/11 post I learned that March is Brain Awareness Month, who knew?

Glad to hear that you find our conversations helpful. I'm still learning as well, so the conversation is also helpful for me. Thanks.

mk

Michael Kirkman

Executive Director

From: Marissa Varcho [<mailto:marissavarcho@gmail.com>]

Sent: Thursday, March 20, 2014 3:17 AM

To: Michael Kirkman

Subject: Man's Search for Meaning--Viktor E. Frankl

[Quoted text hidden]